Discount Fire Supplies Gives Their Predictions For Fire Safety In 2013

In a new blog post, online retailer Discount Fire Supplies gives their predictions for the fire industry in 2013 as well as a preview of which brands will soon be stocked on discountfiresupplies.co.uk.

Discount Fire Supplies is one of the foremost suppliers of fire alarm systems and other life safety products in the UK, with ranges in stock including emergency lighting, gas detection and fire extinguishers.

With a strong understanding of the fire industry and emerging trends, Discount Fire Supplies have chosen to share their predictions for fire safety in 2013 with their customers. These insights have been shared in a post on the company's blog entitled 'Coming Up On DiscountFireSupplies.co.uk In 2013'.

Along with predictions on what customers can expect to see in terms of technology and aesthetics, Discount Fire Supplies have also listed a number of new brands they intend to stock throughout the year.

Tariq El-Hoss of Discount Fire Supplies has made the following forecast for fire safety in 2013:

1. As technologies become more readily available and cost-efficient, prices will be driven down meaning that low-end systems will generally become higher-specification. The result of this is that better fire detection will be available to broader range of people.
2. In terms of the types of fire alarm systems being installed, two-wire fire alarm systems are set to take off this year and will probably replace a lot of systems that previously used conventional fire detection. Addressable systems, with their many benefits over both conventional and two-wire, will remain popular.
3. Usability is important so more fire control panels and other types of equipment are going to start featuring more touch screen interfaces. This is becoming the norm across all industries and is very much an expected feature these days.
4. Looks-wise, there is now a demand for more aesthetically pleasing devices that will blend seamlessly into environments or even become a design feature themselves. Sleek designs and high-grade materials are all likely to be seen this year.

Some of the brands that Discount Fire Supplies are set to introduce on their website in 2013 include C-Tec, Hochiki and Advanced with many more currently in talks.
